March for Science is a nonpartisan rally that celebrates and advocates for evidence-driven, inclusive, transformative, and adaptive science and science policies for the common good. On April 14, 2018, Saturday, there will be a March for Science Satellite event in Washington Square Park. Activities will start at 9AM, followed by talks and speeches from 10AM to noon. We will be inviting elected officials and scientists to address the assembled group. There will be six booths with tables for teach-ins and information sessions. Sponsor organizations will have the option to have a tent for a period of time starting at 9AM.

We have negotiated with the NYC Parks Department and NYC Police Department for permits for the venue (Washington Square Park) and the march route south along Broadway to the Financial District.
